Artworker

Here Design is looking to recruit an Artworker to join their multi-disciplinary team in East London.

A deliberately non-specialist studio, Here Design work on a diverse range of projects across a wide range of disciplines. The right candidate will positively embrace this approach, have an excellent understanding of print processes and a keen eye for detail.

The Artworker will work within a collaborative environment amongst a friendly team of creatives.

Reporting to the Production Director they will produce print ready artwork across a range of areas including branding, packaging, print and publishing.

This role however is more than just a run of the mill artworker role, we are not looking for someone to robotically churn out artworks. We are looking for someone that is happy to communicate to designers if they think there are better ways to achieve the design intent. Who has an interest in print and manufacturing processes, finishes and materials that can feed into designers as the project moves through the studio prior to hitting the production team. With environmental impacts top of everyone's agenda the ideal candidate will be hot on the topic and understand the impact materials and processes can make to the success of a design and its end eco credentials. We want someone that is hands on, maybe with some crafting interest, who can help when needed with in-house mock up requests. As the company continues to grow there maybe additional crossover with a digital team and helping create digital files so an interest or experience in this would also be welcome.

Responsibilities Include

- Working closely with the Production Director & Senior Artworker to produce whatever the studio requires, be it print artworks, digital artworks, brand asset sets or mockups.
- Collaborating with Designers to help them realise their design intent.
- Assisting Designers in specifying inks and finishes to use for different applications.
- Creating low-res files for internal / external signoff and helping to manage the internal sign off process.
- Creation of hi-res print ready artwork files.
- Managing the in-house artwork version control and filing process.
- Working with mock-up agencies to assist in the creation of prototypes/mock-ups.
- Attending press passes, alone or with clients, to give the final artwork sign off.
- Liaising with Project Managers to define briefs.
- Taking ownership over client work you are appointed Brand Guardian for and their always considering their ways of working.
- Creating and exporting assets for client use.
